Library Program

Experimental Television Center has established a library of videotapes which is accessible to interested videomakers/filmmakers and others (please see list attached). The library also contains numerous books and articles concerning video as an art, the historical development of video, concepts of the moving image and technical information.

The Center has written an operations manual for video equipment which is available at cost and is currently in the process of completing another section about the technical concepts which artists must work with.

The Center is in the process of completing a book about the construction of simple raster control units and other low cost modifications to video equipment; this project is supported by the National Endowment for the Arts.
